Book Review “Six Thinking Hats”

The best seller book of Edward de Bono titled “Six Thinking Hats” was reviewed by Dr. Murtaza Farooque on 13th December, 2016. The presenter showed how six distinct directions in which the brain can be challenged. In each of these directions the brain will identify and bring into conscious thought certain aspects of issues being considered (e.g. gut instinct, pessimistic judgement, neutral facts). Six distinct directions are identified and assigned a color. The six directions are:

Blue hat –Managing–what is the goal?

White hat –Information–what information is available?

Red hat –Emotions–statements of emotional feeling.

Black hat –Discernment– logical and realistic.

Yellow hat –Optimistic response–Sees the brighter side of situations.

Green hat –Creativity–Thinks outside the box.

Colored hats are used as metaphors for each direction. Switching to a direction is symbolized by the act of putting on a colored hat. The six thinking hats indicate problems and solutions about an idea the thinker may come up with.

Presentation on “Endnote in Research”

One of the most troublesome issues that causes long delays in the production and management of research projects and papers is the management of the literature review sources.

“Endnote” is a software that attempts to tackle this issue. Therefore, an introductory session on how to utilize Endnote software in research articles was felicitated by Dr. Dimitrios Xanthidis on 20th December, 2016. The presenter stressed that it is an effective package that helps in multiple ways the researcher to organize thoughts, ideas and findings in projects and sub-projects leading to be an effective way of knowledge production. The presenter pointed some of these benefits and encouraged CCBA faculties to take a look at this tool.
